Hadi Sahin

Bio

Hadi Sahin is currently pursuing a Master's degree in Computer Engineering with a focus in Data Science and Machine Learning at Florida International University (FIU). His current research interests include governance and incentive mechanisms in Blockchain networks, lightning networks, and digital forensics analysis using Deep Learning models. Before joining to Florida International University, Hadi received his PhD in Political Science at Washington University in St Louis, MO and worked as an Assistant Professor at TOBB Economy and Technology University in Turkey. He has published works on expropriation risks to foreign investments and has taught classes on various topics in International Political Economy and Quantitative Research Methods.