

Julie Dick, Julie Dick Law, P.A.

Julie is a been a relentless advocate for hurricane and sea level rise preparedness, conservation of coastal resources, and responsible planning. Julie's litigation experience includes multiple high-profile multi-million dollar cases. Julie has successfully advocated for measures to protect South Florida's potable water supply, maintain the urban development boundary in Miami-Dade County, plan for sea level rise, adapt conservation and sustainability measures in the Monroe County Comprehensive Plan Update, reverse decisions to expand landfills into wetlands, and restore the Everglades ecosystem. Julie has worked with various corporate reporting and rating systems to help investors understand the environmental, social and governance performance of companies.

In addition to her work on environmental law, sustainability and climate, Julie represents policy holders in disputes with their property insurance companies.

Generously Sponsored by:

